ISO 45001

OCCUPATIONAL HEALTH AND SAFETY MANAGEMENT

In the ever more growing concern for Health and safety in the workplace, ISO 45001 sets the minimum standard of practice to protect employees from accidents and work related illnesses.

“According to the International Labour Organization (ILO), there are currently more than 2.78 million deaths a year as a result of occupational accidents or work-related diseases, in addition to 374 million non-fatal injuries and illnesses” (iso.org)

What is ISO 45001?

ISO 45001 was published on March 12, 2018 and is the new international standard for occupational health and safety (OH&S) management. ISO 45001 is an international standard that identifies requirements for an occupational health and safety (OH&S) management system which replaces the well-known OHSAS 18001 standard, with guidance for its use, to enable an organisation to proactively improve its OH&S performance in preventing injury and ill-health.

ISO 45001 is intended to be applicable to any organisation regardless of its size, type and nature. ISO 45001 enables an organisation, through its OH&S management system. The structure of ISO 45001 is based on Annex SL, which is the framework used in other ISO management system standards, making implementation and integration easier and more efficient.
